HUNDREDS EXPECTED

REFORM RABBIS TO MEET IN TORONTO NEXT WEEK

A deep concern for the continued conflict in Vietnam and the growing problem of the apathetic Jewish college student will be among the issues discussed at the 77th annual metting at the 77th annuale meeting of the Central Conference form), June 21 — 25, at the Royal York Hotel, here, Canada.

The CCAR represents the oldest rabbinic body in the western hemisphere and comprises an association of 900 Reform Jewish spiritual leaders. The meeting site was chosen to pay tribute to the Centenary celebration of Canada and in recognition of the growing development of Reform Judaism in the country.

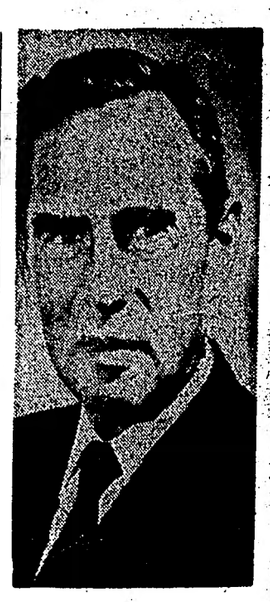
The five-day gathering will discuss and receive reports from the Committee on questions dealing with Vietnam, church-state conflicts, civil rights and the war on poverty; an interim survey on the attitudes of the CCAR rabbis towards officiating at mixed-marriages (between Jew and non-Jew); and current directions of the Committee on Proselytizing — the seeking of converts within the fold of Judaism.

A special evening and morning seminar will be devoted to the influence of the late Martin Buber's thoughts upon Judaism Christianity and philosophy — three authorities will address the gathering, Rabbi Bernard Martin, University Heights, Ohio; Dr. Daniel D. Williams, Professor of Systematic Theology, Union Theological Seminary; and Dr. Abraham Kaplan, Department of Philosophy, University of Michigan.

CCAR. Vice-President, Rabbi Levi A. Olan, Dallas, Texas (program chairman) said that "Buber was one of the most important thinkers of our time. We are anxious to evaluate his influence upon our basic thought and in light of the changes in today's world."

Keynoting the conference will be the CCAR President, Rabbi Jacob J. Weinstein, Chicago on Tuesday evening, June 21. He has been responsible for the Reform rabbinate's active position in calling for a peacful solution to the Vietnam conflict. Last July, Rabbi Weinstein went as part of an inter-faith team of clergymen to study the situation in Southeast Asia and has travelled all over the continent to activate clergymen behind peace-drives.

Other speakers include: Dr. Nelson Glueck, President of the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion; Rabbi Maurice N. Eisendrath, President of the American Congregations; Rabbi Arthur Lelyveld, Cleveland, President of the American Jewish Congress and Rabbi Sidney Regner, Executive Vice-President of the CCAR.



TO ADDRESS RABBIS' CONVENTION HERE: Dr. Nelson Glueck, famous archaeologist and president of the Hebrew Union College (Reform).

MOOD OF ANGER IN TORONTO

NEW BEATTIE MOVE CAUSES WIDE CONCERN

SAY NEW MEETING SUNDAY WILL CREATE HITLERITE BEER CELLAR HERE

(by the Canadian Jewish News reporter)

The mood among European newcomers, Jewish and non-Jewish, who have suffered under the Nazis is one of anger and frustration because of the rumored repetition of the Beattie performance this coming Sunday, June 19th, at Allan Gardens.

At the closing of this issue (Tuesday evening), some are hoping still that at the last moment the self-styled Canadian Nazi "leader", John Beattie, will not be given permission to speak.

Many meetings are being held this week in Toronto, all called by various groups facing the possibility of a protest against turning the park into a Hitlerite, Munich beer cellar.

Some feel that, unless a solution is found to put to an end once and for all to these public provocations of survivors of Nazism, no one will be able to control those incensed by the new development.

Also there are those who are absolutely sure that John Beattie merely is the front man for agents of the neo-Nazi International here.

The Toronto Association of Survivors of Nazi Oppression will renew its demand to organize a counter-demonstration at Allan Gardens whenever Beattie or any other Hitlerite agitator appears.

Though all admit that the police are duty bound to maintain order in accordance with the law, it is hoped that legal steps can be taken to prevent these provocations and deny the public platform to lunatics in the political arena.

Though official Jewish groups are counseling their members to stay away from Allan Gardens whenever Beattie or his ilk appears there to address a crowd, no one really believes that another Beattie meeting publicly in the park could pass without creating some disturbance.

Thousands of Torontonians are angry because of the news that Beattie has been given the right to speak in public this coming Sunday.

QUEBEC: A NEW ERA

The change of administration in Quebec should be considered and earnestly evaluated from the narrow Jewish point of view: first, because whatever happens in Quebec indirectly affects every citizen of that province as well as everyone living in the rest of Canada; second, because of the fact that wherever and whenever national and group convulsions tend to change the makeup of a society, a minority such as Jews is touched directly; third, because, during and after the election campaign that brought Daniel Johnson and his National Union Party to power, remarks were heard to the effect that "the English and the Jews" of Montreal somehow had influenced in a certain direction the vote in Montreal proper.

For years I, for one, have called upon the Jewish community of Montreal, which consists of half the Jewish population in this country, to adjust itself to a new era in Quebec.

It is remarkable how French public opinion has shown upon many an occasion its sensitivity, how it has demonstrated its interest in what I have stated about the Jewish position in Quebec. The most important press organs have reprinted some of my comments yet those whose very existence is allegedly based on measuring the temperature of the Jewish community have remained silent and almost have ignored the evolution or revolution now taking place in La Belle Province.

Unfortunately this comfortable, ostrich-like disregard of a situation where revolutionary steps and energetic action are required is characteristic of many communities with similar problems facing the Jews.

An Establishment usually is conservative, complacent. I have noticed this tendency in Belgium where a like conflict between two main national groups exists; before the war it was Czechoslovakia where somehow the Jewish leadership had failed to grasp the meaning of national problems and had existed in the past of the Austro-Hungarian Empire.

When it concerns comprehending the Jewish position in Quebec, the attitude of those in the Establishment-leadership here is reminiscent of this Austro-Hungarian mentality.

Whatever the Quebec transformation from an ordinary province into a quasi state apart within the Confederation may signify, this metamorphosis requires a serious approach. Definitely it is not in the interest of the Jewish community to be identified with the English ghetto in Montreal. The Jewish community, as I have pointed out time and again, is not committed to the supremacy of the English language and English culture in any section of Quebec. The Jewish community — from its point of view of preserving religious freedom and cultural distinctiveness —absolutely is uncommitted to any other interests or considerations in the conflict brewing in that province.

The Jewish community is one of faith. Because of the structure of North American society and because of the fact that the majority of Jews on this continent is English speaking, it is naturally influenced Jewishly by American Jewry. This, I am certain, even the most fervent nationalists in Quebec understand. What some do not realize, however, is that those Jews determined to continue to live as Jews are dedicated to the proposition of Jewish education.

The linguistic instrument is not the essence; what is taught in the schools is of vital importance. Therefore it is imperative to realize that French is the language of Quebec. Moreover it is erroneous to say, as was hinted recently, that the Jews of Montreal are the natural supporters of the imposition of English as the first language. On the contrary, most Jews possess a natural sympathy for those French demands which would enhance the Presence Française in the province.

The new Johnson administration came into power because the people of Quebec apparently are determined to find a more equitable solution to their national problems. For the moment, the Johnson tide has arrested the extreme Separatist ascension to power. Despite any doubt, the Johnson administration, if given the chance and with the proper support deserved by a democratically elected regime, may bring closer the peaceful adjustment of Quebec within Confederation.

It is useless to look back into the past; one must face the future. And the future of the Jewish community in Quebec lies in the preservation of its Torah culture, its faith.

Jewish survival in Quebec will not be determined by the language used in transmitting our tradition to the young. Since the Jewish community of Montreal flourishes in a city which is the second largest French center in the world, after Paris, it is incumbent upon this community to be integrated into the French culture just as New York Jews are inculcated into the American English civilization.

Thus, as I have indicated yet years ago in this column: the Jewish community schools in Montreal could develop freely if French by language and Hebrew in spirit. After all, the Torah on Mount Sinai was not handed down in English.

ISRAEL, CONGO SIGN NEW FRIENDSHIP PACT

LEOPOLDVILLE. — Israel and Congo signed frienship and cultural agreements last week, and in a joint communique condemned the arms race in the Middle East and racial discrimination. The communique also attacked the illegal Rhodesian Government and called for safeguards for the countrys Africans.

The agreements and communique were signed by visiting Israeli Premier Levi Eshkol and Congolese Premier Gen. Leonard Mulamba. Mr. Eshkol left Leopoldville for a stop in Elisabethville before flying on to Tanarive.

The communique:

- Regretted the absence of peace and the arms race in the Middle East and called for control of arms shipments to lower tensions and find a lasting peace.
- Condemned the use of force and subversion to solve international problems.
- Condemned the illegal regime in Rhodesia and agreed the Rhodesian problem could only be solved if the legitimate rights of the Africans were safeguarded.
- Condemned discrimination everywhere and in every form and regretted that "colonialism" still existed in some parts of Africa.
- Agreed to establish joint study groups to work out projects for international education against discrimination.
- Appealed to the great powers to increase their aid for the economic and social development of the emerging countries.

The friendship and cultural agreements expressed the desire "to strengthen even more the bonds between the two countries." No specific terms were agreed to. Some Congolese already are studying in Israel. The Congo and Israel signed a commercial agreement in 1964 and Israel is helping to train the Congolese Army.

An Israel spokesman said the agreements laid the groundwork for future discussions on trade and cultural exchanges.

Eshkol returns this week to Jerusalem following his 3 weeks tour of Africa.

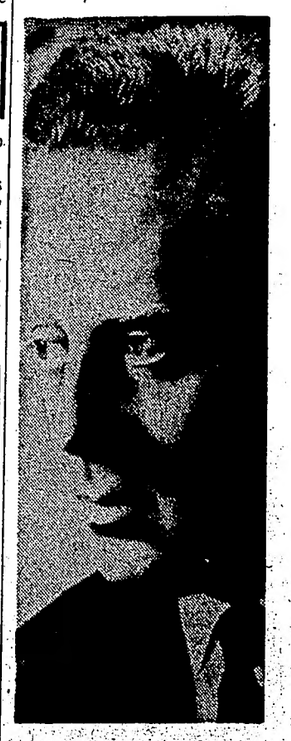
AMERICAN JEWISH CONGRESS FOR GERMAN-JEWISH DIALOGUE

NEW YORK (JCNS) — Rabbi Arthur J. Lelyveld, the new president of the American Jewish Congress, will not give his support to many American constituents of the World Jewish Congress who have been fighting against the inclusion of a Jewish-German dialogue in the agenda of the forthcoming W.J.C. assembly in Brussels.

Addressing his first press conference as the A.J.C. president on Monday, Rabbi Lelyveld said he believed there was need for more dialogues. He believed in "opening the windows of communication," and this did not exclude conversations with some Germans.

Rabbi Lelyveld said that the A.J.C. should step up its programmes against racial and religious discrimination and strengthen its activities in the fields of Church-State separation, Negro-Jewish relations, peace, Soviet Jewry and the Middle East.

He spoke of the "deep concern" of the A.J.C. about the war in Vietnam and indicated that he would follow through on the resolution adopted at the recent Congress convention, which called for a peaceful settlement of that conflict.



RABBI ARTHUR LELYVELD, president of American Jewish Congress; will support discussions with Germans at forthcoming World Jewish Congress meeting.

FOUNDER OF ISRAELI NAVY

HAIFA, (JCNS) — The death occured here on June 7 of Mr. David Nameri, one of the founders of the Israel Navy. He was born in Poland 58 years ago and emigrated to Palestine in 1926.

He was a Hagana commander in the Jordan Valley during the 1929 disturbances. Together with Itzhak Sade and Yohanan Rathner, he was appointed to the newly-established Palmach general staff in 1941, and organized the first seaman's course of the Palmach, the forerunner of the Israel Navy.

He was appointed director-general of the Ministry of Transport in 1960, a post in which he served until last year.

For The Record

The Canadian Jewish News is the only Jewish newspaper in English published in Toronto regularly, 52 weeks a year.

ISRAELI CARS COMPETITIVE

HAIFA, (JCNS) — While the sale of cars has sagged on the local market, the Ilin Industries Company of Haifa has announced record exports this year. Six hundred Jeeps have been sold and another 1,250 are on order. The Company is optimistic that further orders will come in.

Car exports in the first four months of 1966 have reached about $15,000, more than twice the entire 1965 figure. The new orders are worth another $3m. The bulk of the exports are Jeeps and they go to Colombia in a tree-cornered commercial operation. The Ilin assembly plant also hopes to export to Eastern Europe.

Each Jeep exported earns enough foreign exchange to pay for the parts of another. The export of cars does not earn any profits and is possible only if backed up by a good home market. The company, however, gets a subsidy from the Israeli Government.

NISSIM TO IRAN

JERUSALEM. — Sephardi Chief Rabbi Nissim is expected shortly to leave on a trip that will take him to Teheran, Turkey, Rome and Belgium. He is to be accompanied by the Director-General of the Ministry for Religious Affairs, Dr. S.Z. Cahane.

(Last March, Dr. Cahane visited Iran, together with an emissary sent by Rabbi Nissim — Rabbi Suleiman Hugi Abudi, of the Chief Rabbinate Council — in order to deal with a number of problems concerning the "halachic" status of Iranian Jewish women. Rabbi Nissim has since refused to ratify the arrangements that were made.)

JAILED FOR ESPIONAGE

HAIFA, (JCNS) — Two young Israeli Arabs from Shfaram have been sentenced to three years in gaol by Haifa district court for spying for Lebanon. Nasri Nijam, 25, and Faraj Yusuf Jamal, 19, were found quilty of conspiring to obtain information with intent to harm the security of the State, contacting intelligence officers in Lebanon in November, 1965, being in contact with an agent and handing him information liable to be of use to the enemy, and entering Israel illegally on their way back from the Lebanon.

The trial was held in camera. The accused had several previous convictions for other offences.

TORATH EMETH BIG WEEKEND

The synagogue event in Toronto next week will be the annual cultural weekend of Torath Emeth Jewish Center, 1 Viewmount. It will open Thursday evening, June 23rd with a lecture-buffet evening at which the famous rabbi-scientist Dr G. Anemer of Washington, D.C. will speak. The weekend will conclude with a breakfast meeting Sunday morning, June 26th.

CONFIRM M.E. DISCUSSION. De Gaulle who will "encourage" but not "push" the Russians into discussing Middle East peace, according to semi-official Paris sources.

DAYAN IN SAIGON

JERUSALEM. — Foreign Ministry sources, asked to comment on a "Ma'ariv" report that Moshe Dayan M.K., had agreed to visit South Vietnam on behalf of that newspaper, said that "any person in Israel is free to travel."

It is understood that Mr. Dayan, former Chief of Staff, would publish a series of articles on South Vietnam's military and political problems. En route to Saigon, Mr. Dayan would also visit Washington and meet there with representatives of the Defence and State Departments. Mr. Dayan is understood to believe that it is of interest to Israel to study the situation in Vietnam, "which might be repeated elsewhere at any time." As a member of an opposition party, Mr. Dayan considered that his visit could not be interpreted as in any way "official."

The Chairman of the Knesset Foreign Affairs and Security Committee, Mr. David Hacohen, has been seeking to dissuade Mr. Dayan from going to Vietnam.

To Dedicate New Scroll

The Agudat Israel of Toronto, one of the centers of traditional Jewish learning and among the leading congregations in the city, will consecrate this coming Sunday morning a holy scroll (Sefer Torah) which was written especially for this community by a famous scribe in Jerusalem. The Sefer Torah will be dedicated according to tradition.

A procession carrying the Sefer Torah, in which hundreds led by outstanding Orthodox Jewish personalities will march in order to honor the Torah, will start at 30 Wasdale Crescent, 11:30 a.m.

The ceremonies will culminate with a religious rite at the Bet Hamidrash of Agudat Israel, 129 McGillivray Avenue, where Hagaon Yaacov Weinberg, spiritual head of the Ner Israel Yeshiva College, will address the assembled. Among the speakers will be Joseph Friedenson, famous Yiddish writer from New York, editor of the Orthodox magazine, Dos Yiddishe Vort.

The elite of Toronto's Orthodox Jewish community then will participate in the ceremonial luncheon where important messages will be delivered.

Israel Jacob Zweig, one of the best known Swiss Jewish philanthropists who commissioned the writing of this Sefer Torah as a gift to Agudat Israel, arrived this week in Toronto from Zurich.

REFORM JUDAISM DEMANDS RECOGNITION BY ISRAELIS

JERUSALEM, (JCNS) — Representatives of the World Union for Progressive Judaims (Reform) last week appeared before the Knesset Legislation Committee to press their demand for legal status for the movement and its clergy, as part of the Jewish Community in Israel, while rejecting the authority of the Chief Rabbinate.

They also sought legislation enabling them to claim a proportionate share of assistance from the Ministry for Religious Affairs and the local religious councils.

The Knesset Committee was told that the movement might be accorded a status similar to that of the Eda Haradit of the Neturei Karta, which has its own Beth Din and marriage and divorce registrars. However, these are recognised by the Chief Rabbinate, which is hardly likely to recognise a movement which does not accept the halacha as binding.

The Union has seven congregations in Israel with 1,000 paying members.

AGENCY CRITICIZED
TROUBLE WITH MARRANOS

JERUSALEM, (JCNS) — The Jewish Agency is being criticised for bringing from Majorca five Marrano families totalling 24 people, whose integration in Israel is causing difficulty.

It appears that the breadwinners were told in Majorca that their conversion to Judaism would be a mere formality and that as skilled building workers they were greatly in demand in Israel.

However, when they arrived at Nes Ziona, a fortnight ago, they learnt they would have to wait a year for conversion and that all males had to be circumcised.

Then the men were sent on relief work, reclaiming land and clearing rocks, because of the building slump. Last week they refused to do this work and on Monday they were placed in their trades.

The "Haaretz' has called for disciplinary action against the Israelis responsible for giving misleading information and "Yediot Ahronot" stated that the zeal of Israeli representatives overseas must be restrained.

Prof. Heschel

ORTHODOX RABBI FOR INTERFAITH CLERGY SUMMIT

LONDON, (JCNS) — Rabbi Abraham Hershberg, of Mexico City, met the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey, as part of his "guest for religious freedom throughout the world and greater co-operation between the main religions." He also hopes to meet the Pope.

In the past two months Rabbi Hershberg, who is president of the Union of Latin American Rabbis, visited the Soviet Union, Italy, Turkey, Greece, Poland, Belgium and Holland. At a press conference in London he said that he is trying to arrange a summit conference of religious leaders of the world.

SCHOLAR MALIGNED

CONSERVATIVE RABBIS DEFEND DR. HESCHEL

NEW YORK, (JCNS) — The Rabbinical Assembly, the association of Conservative rabbis, has rallied to the defence of one of its leading members, Rabbi Dr. Abraham Joshua Heschel, who has been attacked for charges he made recently that leading "umbrella" organisations of American Jewry were hampering the efforts on behalf of the Soviet Jews.

The attacks against Rabbi Heschel, who is a professor at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, have come from Rabbi Dr. Joachim Prinz, chairman of the Conference of Presidents of Major Jewish Organisations, and Rabbi Israel Miller, chairman of the steering committee of the American Conference on Soviet Jewry.

Dr. Heschel's criticisms were made during the recent convention of the Rabbinical Assembly in Toronto. The Assembly, which is a member of both the Presidents' Conference and the Conference on Soviet Jewry, said that it had not been consulted by either organisation before the statements were issued by their heads.

The Conservative rabbis' statement expressed "dismay at the harsh language" used against Professor Heschel, and "deplored the attacks on the integrity" of the man who had been "a major voice in arousing American Jewry to the plight of the president of the Synagogue Council of America, Rabbi Seymour J. Cohen, regretted that Professor Heschel, "who reminded us of our duty and had the courage to cry aloud, should have been subjected to personal attacks."

Rabbi Cohen, who is also a Conservative, criticised the "indiscriminate language" used by Rabbi Heschel's critics, and said that this was a "poor indication of the moral quality of our community."

Says He's The New Messiah

NEW YORK, (JCNS) — A certain Morris Strauss, 40, has called a meeting at which he is to reveal himself as the Messiah.

He has established an association named after himself and has rented the Academy Hall on Broadway to make his appearance before his followers.

He cites a number of Biblical "proofs" in support of his claim to be the Messiah.

For example, in Isaiah, it is said that a young woman would conceive and bear a son whose name would be Immanuel. "My name is Morris," Mr. Strauss points out, "but my mother's names is Annie. By putting my first initial before her name, you get Mannie, a nickname for Immanuel".

Mr. Strauss's precise philosophy is hard to discern, but seems basically concerned with "removing unnatural fears from sexual relations."

NEW MARITIME COMPANY PROGRESSES

MONTREAL—Ben Milner, well-known businessman and Jewish leader, Canadian director of Maritime Fruit Carriers Co. Ltd., recently returned from a trip to Israel where he attended the annual meeting of the company in its home port — Haifa.

The Israeli company is a new addition to the international Maritime trade. Yet, during the last few years, an important mark in world shipping circles.

Concerned chiefly with the shipping of refrigerated produce, the company maintains a fleet of nine ships, consisting of four ultra-modern refrigerator cargo vessels: LEMONCORE, BANANACORE, AVOCADOCORE, and MANGOCORE; two chartered shipping vessels, and 3 fishing trawlers in the subsidiary Atlantic Fisheries company.

Atlantic Fisheries supplies fish chiefly for the Israeli market. Maritime Fruit Carriers proper carries cargo on the South-America-Europe run. Negotiations are now under way to establish an Australian-U.S. East Coast route.

Officers and crews are mainly Israelis. The vessels are also used to train Naval cadets under an arrangement with the Israel Ministry of Transport.

"There is no question of competition with other Israeli shipping lines", states Yaacov Meridor, Israeli Chairman of the Board of Directors.

"Maritime Fruit Carriers cooperates with ZIM, the national shipping line, and hopes to continue this relationship in the future."

The company was founded on July 9, 1962. Co-founders were Jaacov Meridor, member of the Knesset, and prominent transportation executive, and Captain Mila Brener, who had spent 10 years in the Royal Navy and Merchant Marine.

President of the company is General Pierre Koenig of Paris, the French hero of Ber Hakim fame.

Young Wife's Demands

DR. ROSE N. FRANZBLAU

QUESTION: My daughter married at 18, 21 years ago. They have a son, 19, and a daughter, 16. They never got along too well and now it has gotten worse. She says I don't know what it is to live with a man who is physically dirty.

They have a lovely home, my daughter drives a Cadillac. My son-in-law has a lucrative business. He is a college graduate, and was a shop teacher in high school for one year.

She says he has never paid any attention to his children. He has been interested only in work and money. Their son graduated from a military academy, attended college one year, and now works for his father. This was a great disappointment to my daughter.

Last year they went to a marriage counselor. They were told to come back in two weeks, He wouldn't go back. My daughter has seen an attorney and is thinking about leaving him.

I lost my first husband when my son was 10 and my daughter 15. I remarried three years later. My children love their stepfather and he idolizes me and my children.

ANSWER:

Your daughter, who married just before she was 18, probably does not see herself as a young 39 but as someone much older who has been married for 21 years. Having one child about to enter the twenties and another in middle adolescence makes her feel older, too. She feels her age will be judged by the age of her children and the lenght of her marriage.

It sometimes happens when there have been discords over the years that separation is talked about at this time in a marriage. They argue that now that their children are grown they can follow through on what they really wanted to do for many years. But when examined psychologically, the real reason for such thoughts of separation often lies in the fear o fthe oncoming years and in a resurgence of rebelliousness.

They may have acted out the first part of his rebelliousness in separating from the parents in the form o ftheir early marriage. But now comes the second part of their revolt—breaking up of their marriage and separating from the mate.

A body odor is often sexually exciting. Perhaps this affords a clue to what she regards as unclean and dirty, namely, sexual activity.

Your daughter's criticism of her husband as a father is contradicted by the fact that their son has chosen to work with him. This bespeaks a good father-son relationship.

Yours remarriage and your daughter's marriage evidently took place around the same time. She may want to follow in your footsteps a second time, and repeat the same pattern as you did, of having a second marriage.

Your son-in-law's problem about personal cleanliness, if he really has one, can be worked out much more easily than your daughter's.

She needs therapy herself, more than they both need marriage counseling. One cannot heal the wounds of yesterday by hurting people today.

If, after therapy, the couple want to break up, they may still do so. But it will then be done with less guilt and less hurt

TRUMAN ROLE NOW REVEALED

LONDON, (JCNS) — It was only a last-minute intervention by President Harry Truman himself which, overriding the State Department's anti-Zionist attitude, secured American support for the inclusion of the port of Elath into the Jewish State, Eliahu Elath, president of the Hebrew University, and former Ambassador told a gathering in London.

The political struggle to achieve this aim formed the subject of the Lucien Wolf Memorial Lecture which he delivered to the Jewish Historical Society of England.

The Zionist vision of Jewish statehood, he said, was never limited to the traditional concept of frontiers "from Dan to Beersheba'. The possession of the Negev, its military security and its development had always presupposed and required that the borders of a reborn Jewish State would also stretch from Beersheba to the ancient port of Elath.

"A Jewish State with outlets to both the Mediterranean and the Red Sea would make it the only State in Asia — with the exception of Egypt which is a predominantly African country — to have access to the two great oceans, the Atlantic and the Indian'. Such State, however small in size, would then be able (as was subsequently proved) to develop a wide network of international relations, in every respect, with Europe, Africa and Asia and beyond.

Indeed, so vital had the possession of Elath become that "one may be quite unequivocal in assuming that one of the issues which might cause a second major clash between Israel and Egypt would be an attempt by Egypt to interfere with Israel's freedom of navigation in the Gulf of Elath and the Red Sea." The port of Elath, the speaker stressed, was vital not only for Israel's far-reaching cooperation with Africa and Asia, for the supply of oil and for the exchange of trade, but also for the security of the whole Negev which would be difficult to defend unless its approaches from the Southern end could be adequately protected.

ISRAEL CAESAREA FESTIVAL IN JULY THE BIGGEST

JERUSALEM, (JCNS) — Glyndebourne-style concerts at Caesarea will be one of the chief features of this years's Israel Festival, the sixth. It will open on July 27 with a concert at Binyanei Ha'Ooma here, in the presence of President Shazar. Berlioz's Requiem with the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra conducted by Charles Munch, will be the main work.

One or two concerts will be given for the first time in 2,000 years at the Roman Amphitheatre at Beit Shean which is in a finer state of preservation than the one at Caesarea, but it is a little off the beaten track and is not near the sea.

Among visiting musicians will be Hephzibah Menuhin, the Beaux-Arts Trio, the Yugoslav Chamber Orchestra and Maurice Gendron, the Cellist. The Greek Art Theatre will present Aristophanes' "The Birds".

Entertainment of a new kind on the professional stage will be given by residents of the moshav of Kfar Chabad. who will perform Chasidic songs and dances.

The Israel Festival this year branches out beyond music and drama to embrace literature. On August 8, 9 and 10 there will be a symposium of Anglo-Jewish and Israeli writers, the visitors being John Silkin, Arnold Wesker and Gerda Charles.

CURIOUS DEVELOPMENT

THE POLICE AND BEATTIE

When John Beattie, the self-appointed Canadian Nazi leader, addressed the curious at Allan Gardens on June 5th under police protection, we thought: that was it. Now it is apparent that this moron has become the front man for some mightier interests connected with the Nazi conspiracy.

Also we believe it is a mistake for the public relations department of the Canadian Jewish Congress here — which serves as correspondent for the London Jewish Chronicle — to inform public opinion abroad that Beattie's "rather incoherent talk contained no direct antisemitic utterances". Beattie definitely hinted at the disloyalty of Canadian Jews when he discussed the Israel Bonds campaign.

Furthermore, we find it in bad taste when the same outfit reports to the London Jewish Chronicle in evaluating the attendance at the Beattie Circus:

"... Some were post-war Jewish immigrants — a crowd similar to the one which caused a near-riot last year." We firmly feel that these people who did go through the hell of Auschwitz should be mentioned with greater respect.

As to the Beattie problem, it now is absolutely clear that, while most of those in Allan Gardens left with the impression that the punk has no appeal and is ridiculous, there must have been some neo-Nazi agents there in search of talent. Perhaps these neo-Nazis feel that a moron can serve their purpose more if he aims at disrupting Canadian democracy.

All this is apropos the permit allegedly granted Beattie for another meeting this coming Sunday, June 19th. This time, we understand, the "leader" wants to speak about how to cancel financial obligations of Christians to Jewish money lenders.

There is a theory that Nazism should be fought with the weapon of truth. This theory failed wherever facts were published to refute Hitlerite propaganda.

It would be futile to explain that no banks are "Jewish"; those frustrated who want to believe that others are responsible for their personal problems will buy any quack medicine. And Hitlerism is quack medicine which must be fought legally but effectively.

Certainly it is inconceivable for a would-be Nazi leader to start a campaign of calumny by appealing to the lowest instinct of the people — under the continuous protection of the police, protection that begins to look like sponsorship.

TOO MANY PARTIES

A FRESH BREEZE

Shimon Peres, the man who was responsible for Israel's defense organization under Ben Gurion and now the leader of B.G.'s Rafi Party, is at present visiting the United States and Canada. Here, in Canada, Mr. Peres is the guest of the Institute of Strategic Studies.

Speaking to our JCNS reporter, Mr. Peres made the following points concerning the platform of the New Rafi Party (Ben Gurion Group):

● Let the gentlemen in the World Zionist Organisation be warned that we intend to become the "trouble-makers" of the movement . . . a ginger group working against the status quo.

As far as Rafi's attitude to the Zionist movement and the diaspora was concerned, Mr. Peres said that it accepted "to a large degree" the position adopted by its leader, Mr. David Ben-Gurion.

● We consider ourselves Zionists, but with a difference. We are Zionists who wish to see a renaissance in the movement. The question is: Should the Zionist Movement once again become a movement of challenge and change, or should it remain an organisation for the consolidation of the status quo? Should it be an association of thinking people ready to respond to the changing demands of our time, or should it remain a public relations organisation for mutual flattery and mutual admiration?

● We want the Zionist Organisation restored to what it used to be—a movement sparkling with ideas and not with dinner champagne. The Zionist Movement nowadays relies more and more on organisation and finance. Fund-raising is, of course, important, but we would like to establish closer contact with the Jewish mind, not only with the Jewish purse.

● Asked whether Rafi would insist on personal emigration to Israel as the criterion of being a Zionist (as Mr. Ben-Gurion does), Mr. Peres said that it would, but added: "Voluntary emigration to Israel must also depend on what Israel does and is, in the material and in the social and spiritual sense. Israel must be made attractive to world Jewry by being an exemplary society with high moral standards of public life and democracy.

"Israel must also rediscover the Jewish faith — and I do not mean only religion in its ritual sense — as the philosophical basis of the uniqueness of Judaism."

● Rafi would on no account accept any funds from the Jewish Agency (as do the Zionist parties). It would rely only on individual contributions from well-wishers. Nor would Rafi set up its own party branches outside Israel. There are already too many Zionist parties and there is no need to add yet another one.

● Rafi would maintain close contact and a "continuing dialogue" with the Jewish people outside Israel, especially the younger generation and the intellectuals, in which stress would be laid on the needs of the Jewish State and the Jewish nation and its moral values.

"The period of a superiority-inferiority relationship and of simple ideology is over; the need today is for a serious dialogue on complex matters."

THE FACTS

THAW IN MOSCOW?

LONDON, (JCNS) — The Soviet Union has taken "a decision to start an experimental model Jewish school with a possibility of a network of such school," according to the current issue of the "Soviet Weekly," published in London by the Russian Embassy. The report was released by Novosty, an official Soviet news agency which specialises in the dissemination of propaganda relating to the Soviet Union's Jewish minority.

Its importance lies not only in the news itself but in the possibility that the U.S.S.R. may be taking steps to restore, at least to some extent, the situation before 1948, when Stalin began the liquidation of the secular Yiddish culture.

Thus, the information several weeks ago, from what is considered to have been a reliable source, that the Soviet authorities may be engaged in a reassessment of the position of the Jews in debates on the highest level, now has some semi-official confirmation.

Other "new developments in the Soviet Union," as Novosty calls them, are listed as follows:

● The Kiev group of Jewish writers is to have its own publication;

● A Yiddish State theatre is to be organised (in Moscow) on the basis of the Moscow group of producer Shwartz" — evidently Vladimir Shartser;

● The Vilnius (Vilna) Yiddish State company will become a State Theatre.

The Kiev group published "Der Shtern" (The Star), a literary quarterly, until it was closed down in the purge in 1948. The news about the group, if true, is tempered by information brought back from Kiev recently by a tourist who reported that the situation there was "worse than in any capital of a Soviet Republic." Kiev officials, he said apparently have a "free hand in pursuing anti-Jewish policies."

The Ukraine, of which Kiev is the capital, has traditionally been a hotbed of antisemitism — a condition made worse by the Nazi occupation.

As for the Moscow Yiddish theatre, the Russian capital had the world-famous Yiddish State Theatre ("Goset") until 1949, when it, too was liquidated together with the rest of Jewish culture. It was headed by Solomon Mikhoels, who was executed in 1948, and then by Benjamin Zuslin, who took over until it was liquidated.

Vilna had no Jewish State theatre after the Second World War, but State Theatres existed in Czernowitz (the Kiev Yiddish State Theatre, headed by M. Goldblat), and in Minsk, headed by V. Golovchiner.

There were still some Yiddish schools in 1948 in Birobidjan, Vilna and Czernowitz, and one literary review — "Mit Festn Trit" (With Firm Step), of the Yiddish writers of Minsk, still existed for a short time.

There is no daily newspaper in Yiddish for the nearly half-a-million Soviet Jews who listed that language as their mother tongue in a recent census. A twice a week newspaper "Birobidjaner Shtern" (Birobidjan Star), has only 1,000 circulation and does not reach an audience outside that region. It is merely a translation into Yiddish of the local Russian newspaper plus a few items of Jewish interest.

Novosty, in another report, said that six new books in Yiddish will appear in 1966. Since it takes several months to print a book in the Soviet Union, and Novosty did not know, at the end of May, the titles of the forthcoming books, or even their authors, it is doubtful if the six volumes will appear this year.

However, this and the reports of the "experimental school" and the new publications are more evidence that decisions relating to Jewish cultural matters have been taken only recently at meetings of Communist Party bodies on the highest level, following the party congress in April of this year.

However, alongside these more positive reports from the Soviet Union comes other, less reassuring intelligence. As in the case of Kiev, cited above, similarly disturbing word has come from Lwow (formerly Lemberg, in Galicia, now in the U.S.S.R.), and Czernowitz.

In Lwow, it is stated, antisemitism "seems to proceed unchecked." Jews, it is said, occupy no positions of consequence, and no important enterprise employs them. Jewish culture has been stifled, and only one performer, Sidi Tal, has been allowed to appear. Other Jewish actors from Kishinev and Czernowitz have been refused permission to perform in Lwow.

Bleak Outlook

ECONOMY OF ISRAEL

by BARUCH BER

JERUSALEM, (JCNS). — It is still too early to judge whether Mr. Pinhas Sapir's recent trip to Europe will result in an increased flow of capital to Israel. But his influence on his colleagues and the economic community was immediate when he returned and counselled against panic.

When he had begun his journey, unemployment — negligible in general economic terms, but concentrated in the vulnerable development areas — was causing a number of demonstrations and clashes with the police. The Government, lacking a clear economic policy and loath to accept the consequences of its restrictive Budget, was shocked into action. Speeches were delivered, delegations of unemployed received by Mr. Eshkol and promises of quick relief made.

For a short while, it seemed that the Government, being unprepared for dealing with that kind of unemployment would throw its restrictive policy overboard and pump money into the economy whereever requested. A campaign was also inaugurated for industries to move to development areas, but this, even if successful, could hardly provide immediate relief for the several thousand unemployed concentrated in particular townlets, and sometimes constituting 20 to 25 per cent of local manpower.

When Mr. Sapir arrived back in Israel, he drove straight from the airport to a meeting at the Prime Minister's Office to persuade industrialists to move plant to development areas. He listened patiently to a recital of industry's complaints, which all added up to low or non-existent profits, agreed that times were difficult, but then said that those very difficulties promised a real improvement both in productivity and in the unfavourable balance of trade.

Since the Government depends on conservative Left-wing support, Mr. Sapir may have trouble in implementing a policy based on this premise. He will be under pressure to aid the unemployed, and still may do so. If he does and produces a large Budget deficit, the inflationary consequences will be heavy.

The Government will also have to find a solution to the problem of Haifa Port. The dockers, the highest paid workers in Israel, are holding the country to ransome by persisting in a go-slow for large wage increases.

Emergency action against them may rock the basis of the coalition, but giving in to them may undo the whole system of wage bargaining and steeply increase cost inflation.

KEEP SMILING

A NAME IS A NAME

A zealous Nazi teacher was explaining to her class the relative merits of names. "Jewish names are harsh, while Aryan names sound beautiful," said the teacher. In order to prove her point, she asked the only Jewish boy in the class to state his first name.

"I'd rather not, you'll laugh," said the child.

Upon being coaxed, however, the boy said, "All right, it's Adolf."

THE OTHER ANGLE

The teacher was preparing his 10-year-old German boys for the celebration of Hitler's birthday.

He said in a speech, "Since Hitler has done so much for us, we must look upon him as a father and act accordingly."

"Suppose Hitler really were your father, the teacher went on, "what yould you pray to be?"

"An aviator," said one boy.

"An army general," popped up another.

"A Storm Trooper," shouted a third.

"How about you?" the teacher addressed a boy sitting up front.

"I'm afraid to speak; I'm Jewish."

"Tell us anyway," said the teacher.

"If I were Hitler's son," said the Jewish lad haltingly, "I'd pray that I become an orphan."

TOO BUSY?

Papa: Who is that woman you talked to for a whole hour on the sidewalk?

Mama: That's our neighbor, Mrs. Gold. She had to tell me something important and she was too busy to come in.

SERMON FOR THE WEEK

INCENSE OF LIFE

And he stood between the dead and the living; and the plague was stayed (Numbers 17, 13)

Korah's rebellion ended in plague. It was a classic sequence: every revolt against the true priesthood, against hallowed worship that springs from the heart, against dedicated idealism that shrinks from no sacrifice in its endeavour to sanctify earth with the Kingdom of Heaven, results in fatal tragedy.

But the pestilence was stayed. Aaron himself, the target of the rebellion, came to the help of the agressors. With a censer filled with burning incense he stood between the dead and the living — and life conquered.

The episode, so remote in time and divergent in its circumstances, may yet be regarded as a not inapt parable of our own generation. We live in an iconoclastic epoch, an age in revolt. The modern Korahs, mutatis mutandis, also impugn the priesthood of Israel. They deny its authority, belittle its values, deride its symbols.

Chamelon-like the rebels change their protective colouring to suit their environment. The intellectual speaks in the name of a pseudo-scientific philosophy of religious negation; the materialist hides behind a face of blinkered pragmatism; the profligate clamours for moral concession to the prevailing trends of the age; the unthinking simply drift in a rudderless craft of indifference.

Heterogeneous as this motley Korah company is, its adherents have one common platform: they reject the priesthood of Judaism, they are resolved to be "like all the nations", devotees of the new paganism, though its path inevitably leads to spiritual nihilism.

"Whence cometh my help?"—an old question flowing from old-new dangers. The answer lies in the denouncement of the Korah parable. Aaron must stay the epidemic with a handful of incense: an oblation of religious fragrance, however small quantitatively, must rise again from the flowing altar-coals of a dedicated ministry.

Every great spiritual revival is inspired and led by a handful of men. A single "Aaron" can halt the creeping death of irreligion. It is not the numbers but the spirit that matters. The magnitude of the altar-fire, the intensity of devotion, the impassioned love of our Torah-faith — these are the determining factors.

Aaron's rod was the ultimate test of the validity of his leadership. Possibly Korah was more eloquent and persuasive than the true priest of God; he was certainly a more skilful rabble-rouser. Possibly the rebels enjoyed better publicity: their activities, however trivial and inherently insidious, were presented as matters of national importance.

But it was the flowering rod, the fruitful branch which proclaimed the chosen servant of the Lord. It was his spirit of humility and service that saved Judaism in the wildnerness, and can assure its renewed efflorescence today.

letters to the editor

HOW TO SURVIVE AS JEWS IN CANADA

Dear Editor:

Henry Rosenberg's letter (C.J.N. May 27), stating the secularist position on Judaism does not, in fact, constitute a "New Viewpoint on Jewish Survival" as the caption would lead us to believe. A similar position has been asserted as early as Hellenistic times, and with renewed vigour particularly in the past century.

Succinctly, Mr. Rosenberg's argument appears to be based on the following premises:

(a) The maintenance of Jewish identity is a desirable end;

(b) "The emphasis on kashrut and religious day schools has not been very successful in holding our young people . . . who intermarry and leave the fold";

(c) "Secular Jewish learning to students of high schools and universities would do much more (to maintain Jewish identity) than religious education that usually stops . . . at the age of thirteen".

With the first premise I have little quarrel. The real issue, however, is the purpose for which that identity is maintained. If it is merely a nostalgic desire to preserve the Jews as a "historic social group with a common history of accomplishment and persecution", then is it really necessary to retain the whole series of institutions which receive Mr. Rosenberg's support? If the objective is to maintain the "common (Jewish) ethical background" as distinct from the secular norms of modern life, then clearly Mr. Rosenberg's solution, suggested in the third proposition, is futile.

Mr. Rosenberg's second premise, that of the failure of the day school movement, is clearly fallacious. In spite of the fact that this movement in Toronto is barely a half a generation old, it is already doing more to hold the young people as Jews than any other contemporany institution. Even groups other than the orthodox have come to recognize this fact. The cause of the defection about which Mr. Rosenberg complains is to be found in his third point, namely, that "religious education usually stops . . . at thirteen". It is precisely because secularism is emphasized to the exclusion of religion at this crucial age of growing intellectual curiosity that "our young people lose interest in the religious part of their Jewish teaching"; it is precisely those students who do not have the benefit of the day school education who are the main contributors to the "alarming percentage . . . who intermarry and leave the fold".

I suggest that Mr. Rosenberg is misguided in his solution to the problem, as he has expressed it, in his third premise. There is no evidence that "secular Jewish learning" is a better way of preserving Jewish identity than religious education. In fact the evidence is all in the other direction. A glance at the history of German Jewry in the late eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, and Russian Jewry in the twentieth, should be enough to convince anyone of the futility of relying on secularism alone. In Germany, the desire for civil emancipation "externally", demanded as a precondition, the emancipation of the Jew "internally" by secular indoctrination and the absorbtion of the values of general Western culture. It has been estimated that half the Jews in Berlin during the first decades of the last century marched to the baptismal font. In Russia, the Marxist ideology converted the forces of Jewish secularism into the desire of universal communism at the expense of Jewish values.

While I would concede that a religious education is no guarantee against assimilation, the chances of a student's rejection of Yiddishkeit, especially in the University, are greatly diminished. A further consideration is the education of the children of non-religious parents. Would Mr. Rosenberg deprive these parents of the opportunity to expose their children to an aspect of Jewish life which would otherwise be denied them? Such a facility is dependent upon the support, encouragement and responsibility of the total Jewish community, religious or otherwise. It is too much to hope that such parents would take the initiative to provide private substitutes for the day school.

Mr. Rosenberg only confuses the issue by his objection to any imposition of religious conduct by "the Canadian government . . . and its Jewish counterpart the Canadian Jewish Congress". In these times it is inconceivable to suppose that the Canadian government would impose on Mr. Rosenberg standards of religious conduct per se. As for Congress, even if it were solely concerned with religious education and kashrut, it does not follow that its activities would result in the enforced wearing of "payot and yarmulkas" by unwilling persons.

If by the "imposition of religious conduct" Mr. Rosenberg means that his government taxes and contribution to C. J. C. might be used for activities which do not command his support, then may I remind him that a basic premise of our democratic process is that our resources are often used for purposes which fail to generate unanimous agreement, including activities which support minority interests.

● Latest news has it that The Music Critics' Association would not review the National Opera's production of Carmina Burana, coming Thursday, pending a "definitive statement from some Government agency" that the German composer of the Cantata, Carl Orff, was not a Nazi collaborator. The critics did not attend last Saturday night's premiere and returned their tickets to the INO. The premiere was picketed by former partisans.

Meanwhile, a member of the INO's management and two members of its public committee (all three members of Herut) have resigned in protest against the presentation of the work. They are Dr. Yohanan Bader, M.K., of the management, Isak Remba and Ben-Zion Katznelbogen of the committee.

This most famous work has been performed widely, including in the Soviet Union and Poland.

Decision not to attend the premiere was taken after a stormy meeting in which several critics noted that Carmina Burana had been played at command performances attended by Goebbels and other members of the Nazi high command. A majority felt that the question of Orff's past, specifically allegations that he cooperated with the Nazis, had not been investigated fully.

"We are not boycotting the performance," a spokesman said, "we are waiting. If the Government is ready to clear him, then we are ready to review the cantata."

An innovation of the festival will be the inclusion of the Arab population of Nazareth in the cultural events by organizing regular transport from Nazareth to the Beit Shean amphitheatre.

Arab troups also are being included in the program. For the first time the Festival organizers succeeded in influencing Habad Hasidim to take part. At first they were reluctant but later agreed. Aharon Propes, Festival organizer said.

● Israel's Foreign Ministry requested that the film, Sallah Shabati, now in its last week at Toronto's Capitol, should not be shown in Eastern Europe. Foreign Minister Eban denied that the Ministry had intervened to prevent the exhibiting of the film in these countries However, he said, the producers had asked the Ministry's opinion. The Ministry felt that in countries where it was generally impossible to exhibit films which gave a factual and full version of real life in Israel, it was inadvisable to exhibit a film whose description of life in Israel could be misinterpreted easily.

KING OF THE NIGHT CLUBS. - Joe E. Lewis, who will be the featured headliner at the 8th annual Theater Night sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary, The Jewish Home for the Aged and Baycrest Hospital, Sunday, June 19th, 8:15 p.m. at Toronto's O'Keefe Centre. Proceeds go to Day Care.

TORONTO AFTER DARK

POP SINGERS HERE

The Supremes, leading female vocal trio in the music world today, perform at O'Keefe Center next week, commencing Monday June 20th, through Saturday June 25th, for one week. Their three consecutive recordings — Where Did Our Love Go, Baby Love, Come See About Me — have reached the Number One spot on the sales charts, all in a thee-month period during which they sold in excess of three million records.

The girls, Diana, Mary and Florence, have been close friends since their childhood days in Detroit where they first started singing at local functions. They describe their sound as "Blues with a pop beat." Diana generally is the lead voice, Florence sings top and Mary the bottom.

With them will appear the favorite comedy star, Red Buttons, who needs no introduction to audiences around the world.

DEAR ME AGAIN

The last week in June, through July 2nd, Gertrude Berg (Mollie Goldberg), everybody's favorite Yiddishe Mama, will be at Vineland's Garden Center Theater in, Dear Me, The Sky Is Falling. The rare few who missed this delightful comedy when Mrs. Berg performed in it in Toronto a few seasons ago will have the opportunity of enjoying it in one of our province's fastest growing summer resorts almost "around the corner" from the Big City.

RICH MUSICAL FARE

An all-star revue at O'Keefe Center, the Annual Theater Night, sponsored by The Jewish Home for the Aged and Baycrest Hospital will be seen on Sunday, June 19th. Heading the cast is Joe E. Lewis, King of the night clubs. Hershel Bernardi, currently starring on Broadway in Fiddler on the Roof, will sing favorite numbers. Children know him best as the voice of the Jolly Green Giant and Charlie the Tuna. Other performers are: Estrellita and Raul, masters of Flamenco and Spanish Ballet; the Four Ayalons, Israeli comedians who appeared recently at the Royal Alex; Phyllis Arick, sweetheart of Song. Frank Strean is director and producer of this year's benefit performance.

Proceeds are allocated towards, the Day Care program, "The Program with a heart." At present the Home accomodates ninety senior citizens. When completed, the Day Care Center will house up to 350 senior citizens.

CASTLE GEORGE SCORES AGAIN

Len Udow, outstanding international folk artist, is packing them in at Castle George. There's just one week more to catch this sensational singer.

Meanwhile the Moe Koffman Quartet, which just returned from New York City and their fourth successful appearance on The Johnny Carson "Tonight Show", will perform in the Spaghetti House downstairs, commencing Monday, June 20th, through Saturday, the 25th.

MEXICAN ENTERTAINERS

Young Mexican entertainers known as Los Dinamicos are making a name for themselves in the Hook and Ladder Club at the Beverly Hills Motors Hotel. They consist of students of the University of Mexico, four young men and a duet of beautiful twins, Gloria and Tere. Tere studies at the Conservatory of Music where Gloria teaches piano.

YIDDISH SHOW

Two Partners, and, My Wife Goes to the Country, two musical skits, will be performed by the Toronto Yiddish Theater Ensemble coming Sunday at the downtown "Y".

FASTEST GROWING RECORDING ARTISTS. - The Supremes, who will appear at Toronto's O'Keefe Centre for one week, Monday, June 20th, through Saturday, June 25th.

Theatre In Toronto

by BARBARA I. PEARL

INFANTICIDE... : HYPNOTIC

Infanticide in the House of Fred Ginger, chilling to the bone, is hypnotic from its lukewarm beginning to its ugly end.

This North American premiere of an English drama now running at Central Library Theater depicts slum life in the raw — and one feels no matter how much is being done to alleviate matters, the surface hasn't even been scratched.

Locale is of no importance. Whether in Toronto, London, New York, anywhere — ugliness, frustration, dying hopes breed the same conditions.

In all his squalor, Fred Ginger, a hospital orderly, attempts to bring some kind of respectibility to his home. It does not help much, however, when the arguments of the couple renting a room spill over and involve the entire household.

Further aggravation is provided when Charlie Ginger comes home, rejected from the army.

A fine setup for some perfect offense!

As the plot unfolds, one wonders: how much is environment conducive to crime?

Actually the lives of the Gingers and Lassiters don't really cross until Charley and his two hoodlum friends, Knocker White and The Duke, reach a climax where their emotions explode in violence — in this case, inadvertently killing an infant whose odd babysitter (Claude Rae) is frightened away.

Sean Sullivan, with great finesse, portrays Fred Ginger in a manner evoking sympathy for the rough, tough father who is aware of his shortcomings yet is helpless to do anything about it.

Judith Kallen brings warmth and understanding to her role of Catrine Lassiter, the young nurse whose baby is conceived before marriage. Defeated by circumstances, it is no wonder she becomes a nagging shrew.

Chuck Shamata plays Jerry Lassiter with much realism. He feels hindered on all sides. Ambitious for finer things, he gives up his job as a factory worker. But even that does not trouble him so much as his sexual inadequacies which, he maintains, is the core of the happiness or unhappiness of a marriage.

Watching Vincent Marino (Charley Ginger), Nick Fylan (Knocker White) and Larry Perkins (The Duke) enact the three hoods wallowing in their filth and obscenities can only make us feel how ashamed we ought to be in prudishly blinding ourselves to a kind of life we should help eradicate.

KLIGMAN AT ISRAEL BOND MEET

Dr. Joseph J. Schwartz, world leader of the Israel Bond Organization, will be guest of honor at a leadership conference and investiture in connection with Israel's Chai year to be held at the Park Plaza on June 23rd. The conference is organized by the Toronto State of Israel Bond Organization and will be chaired by Max Schecter, chairman.

Artist Paul Kligman will entertain. Women volunteers will receive awards.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

BARBECUED TURKEY

1 six-pound to seven-pound turkey, cut into wings, drumsticks, thighs, 4 pieces breats and 2 pieces back
3 slices fresh ginger, finely chopped, or one teaspoon powdered ginger
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon monosodium glutamate
1 tablespoon honey
¼ cup imported soy sauce
¼ cup salad oil
2 cloves garlic, finely chopped.

Place the turkey pieces in a large bowl. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over turkey. Marinate for at least two hours at room temperature or overnight in the refrigerator.

Place drained turkey pieces on a grill six to eight inches above hot coals. Cook, turning, about one and one-half hours, basting frequently with the remaining marinade. To avoid overcooking of wings and backs, these pieces may be added after the first half hour of cooking. Turkey is cooked when there is no pinkness near drumstick bone.

Yield: eight servings.

ALWAYS AN AGGRAVATION

By RUTHIE

Husbands! Sure, we love them. But at the same time, we can cheerfully strangle them.

The thing is, I must admit they're less hypocritical than we. But why can't they be obliging once in awhile and butter up the family? Yours, naturally.

I don't know, they say they love you yet when you want to take them visiting maybe an aunt or a cousin they think you're leading them to slaughter.

"I didn't marry your family; I married you."

True. But does that mean you have to forsake everybody?

Finally they go along. But just get them to talk. Mine, for instance, can sit a whole night without opening up his mouth. I'd have been better off if he stayed home.

"What's the matter, you can't say something? You have to sit like a shtoomma gegga (dumb cluck)?"

"Well, they're always talking about forty years ago. I didn't know you then."

So go answer.

But just act the same way with their family! They also talk about forty years ago. But if you don't want any dirty looks, you'll seem interested. You'll even ask to explain about the time a fifth cousin twice removed visited the town and grandma took him in, fed him, and kept him a whole year. Stories like that.

We just got an invitation to a wedding. On my side of the family. Nu, the affair is far away so right away he's slicing the present. The plane fare, you know.

So, okay, you'll stand anything only he should be nice.

After twenty years, you'd think he knows everybody. And he does. But you have to go over the whole thing again.

"Remember, there's Mooma (aunt) Elka, Mooma Pessel, Mooma Breindel, Fetter (uncle) Moisha, Fetter Yankel, Fetter Mendel," and a long line of first cousins, let alone second and third and their children.

"And you have to kiss them all so no one gets insulted.

"By the way, remember Aunt Ethel from Arizona? She'll be there."

"You mean the one whose husband is the koimenkerrer (chimney sweep) in the Fire Department?"

"How dare you! I'll have you know my grandfather, he should rest in peace, gave all his children the best. He sent them all to yeshivas. Aunt Ethel, for the hundredth time, is an aunt by marriage. My uncles are all educated.

"You must mean her father. He worked for the Fire Department and he'd be a hundred if he were living.

"A koimenkerrer! Some nerve!"

"All right. So I made a mistake."

But I was fuming. I wouldn't let him off so easily.

"And what about your Uncle Faivel? And his son the simpleton? Maybe my family can match yours with a few dopes. But there's plenty of Yikhuss (prestige), plenty of doctors, dentists and lawyers too.

"So you better be nice at the wedding even if it hurts."

We go through that before every family affair. Somehow it always winds up with everybody saying what a nice guy I married. And after we get home, he does admit my family is as good as his (he does me a big favor). Until the next simkha — when he jumbles them up again and we start all over.

Announce New Healing Substance: Shrinks Piles

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most important of all—results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue.

Now Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H. Ask for it at all drug stores. Satisfaction or your money refunded.
